Grammatical Perspectives on Texts

Debra Myhill
Different views of grammar

- Learning grammar rules;
- Correcting grammar errors;
- De-contextualised exercises;
- A focus on error and accuracy.

OR

- Developing knowledge about language;
- Using metalanguage to talk about language;
- Making connections between grammar and writing;
- A focus on meaning and effects.

prescriptive grammar

descriptive grammar
Theorising Grammar

Prescriptivist/descriptivist distinction:

- A prescriptivist theory of a grammar-writing relationship would argue for the importance of grammar in securing correctness in written expression;

- A descriptivist theory of a grammar-writing relationship would argue for the importance of grammar in illuminating how written text generates meaning in different contexts.

Accuracy in writing is necessary, but not sufficient to generate good writers.
Theorising Grammar

Hallidayian underpinning:

- how we write something as important as what we write
- learning how to mean; grammar as a resource for meaning-making; (Halliday 2003; 2004)
- ‘Whereas traditional approaches conceive of grammar as a set of structures which can be assessed as correct or incorrect, Halliday sees language as a resource, a meaning-making system through which we interactively shape and interpret our world and ourselves’ (Derewianka and Jones 2010:9).
The Exeter Approach

- An integration of learning about reading, writing and grammar;
- It constantly makes links between reading and writing;
- It is not a course in grammar; it is a way of teaching knowledge about language;
- The attention to grammar is embedded within the teaching is explicit and sets out to help both the interpretation of text and greater expertise as writers;
- It fosters metalinguistic understanding about text;
- It is underpinned by a set of pedagogical principles to guide how the grammar is used.
Our Research Context

- A cumulative series of studies on the teaching of grammar to support writing development: from randomised controlled trials to qualitative longitudinal studies, showing evidence of positive impact on student attainment;
- The goal is to develop explicit metalinguistic understanding about writing and being a writer: explicit knowledge which can be internalised;
- The research also looks at implementation: how teachers adopt the pedagogical approach and the challenges they face.
Our Research Evidence

- Study 1: Randomised Controlled Trial (RCT) with 12-13 year old students: significant positive effect;
- Study 2: Quasi-experimental study investigating the approach with 12-13 year old weak writers: positive effect
- Study 3: Quasi-experimental study, with 14-15 year olds, investigating the reading-writing link: positive effect
- Study 4: RCT with 9-10 year olds: small positive effect
- Study 5: RCT with 9-10 year olds: positive effect;
- Study 6: Longitudinal study over 3 years of how students develop metalinguistic understanding: conceptual development; application in writing; relationship between teaching and student learning
Four Key Teaching Principles

- Make a link between the grammar being introduced and how it works in the writing being taught:
  - eg exploring how past and present tense are used in newspaper reports for recount and comment

- Explain the grammar through examples, not lengthy explanations:
  - eg exploring how prepositional phrases can create foreshadowing in narrative through a card sort of prepositional phrases from ‘The Lord of the Flies’.

- Build in high-quality discussion about grammar and its effects:
  - eg discussing as a whole class the different grammatical choices in two students’ drafts of the ending to an argument piece.

- Use examples from authentic texts to links writers to the broader community of writers:
  - eg using World Wildlife Fund campaign material to explore the language choices in persuasive writing
CREATING CHARACTER
Introducing a Character

- Who is your audience?
- What kind of story is it? What do you want it to do/achieve?
- What impression of your character do you want to convey in this opening?
- How do you want to make your reader feel or think?
- Is there any key information you want to convey in this opening?
Noun Phrases to Establish Character

Zeljan Kurst was a large man with heavy, broad shoulders that formed a straight line on either side of an unnaturally thick neck. He was bald by choice. His head had been shaved and there was a dark grey shadow beneath the skin. His eyes, a muddy brown, showed little intelligence and he had the thick lips and small, squashed nose of a wrestler, or perhaps a bouncer at a shady nightclub. Many people had underestimated him and occasionally Kurst had found it necessary to correct them. This usually involved killing them.

from Scorpia Rising: Anthony Horowitz
Pip, and the reader’s, first encounter with Magwitch:

A fearful man, all in coarse grey, with a great iron on his leg. A man with no hat, and with broken shoes, and with an old rag tied round his head. A man who had been soaked in water, and smothered in mud, and lamed by stones, and cut by flints, and stung by nettles, and torn by briars; who limped and shivered, and glared and growled; and whose teeth chattered in his head as he seized me by the chin.

Charles Dickens – Great Expectations
Pip, and the reader’s, first encounter with Magwitch:

A fearful man, all in coarse grey, with a great iron on his leg. A man with no hat, and with broken shoes, and with an old rag tied round his head. A man who had been soaked in water, and smothered in mud, and lamed by stones, and cut by flints, and stung by nettles, and torn by briars; who limped and shivered, and glared and growled; and whose teeth chattered in his head as he seized me by the chin.

Charles Dickens – Great Expectations
 ESTABLISHING CHARACTER

Pip, and the reader’s, first encounter with Magwitch:

A fearful man, all in coarse grey, with a great iron on his leg. A man with no hat, and with broken shoes, and with an old rag tied round his head. A man who had been soaked in water, and smothered in mud, and lamed by stones, and cut by flints, and stung by nettles, and torn by briars; who limped and shivered, and glared and growled; and whose teeth chattered in his head as he seized me by the chin.

Charles Dickens – Great Expectations
ESTABLISHING CHARACTER

Pip, and the reader’s, first encounter with Magwitch:

A fearful man, all in coarse grey, with a great iron on his leg. A man with no hat, and with broken shoes, and with an old rag tied round his head. A man who had been soaked in water, and smothered in mud, and lamed by stones, and cut by flints, and stung by nettles, and torn by briars; who limped and shivered, and glared and growled; and whose teeth chattered in his head as he seized me by the chin.

Charles Dickens – Great Expectations
Pip, and the reader’s, first encounter with Magwitch:

A fearful man, all in coarse grey, with a great iron on his leg. A man with no hat, and with broken shoes, and with an old rag tied round his head. A man who had been soaked in water, and smothered in mud, and lamed by stones, and cut by flints, and stung by nettles, and torn by briars; who limped and shivered, and glared and growled; and whose teeth chattered in his head as he seized me by the chin.

Charles Dickens – Great Expectations
Proper Nouns: Creating Character

Butcher Boy  Magwitch
Bloodbottler  Uriah Heap
MaidMasher  Mr Quilp
Gizzardgulper  Florence Dombey
Meatdripper  Toodle
Childchewer  Pumblechook
Manhugger  Wackford Squeers
Bonecruncher  Fagin
Fleshlumpeater  from Dickens

from The BFG
SENTENCE VARIETY
Around a drowned oak stump, through twisting green weeds, a mudhole is hidden.

Eel knows without thinking it’s what he’s been seeking. He slips through the ooze. This hole is his home.

Poetic text: main clause delayed with two foregrounded prepositional phrases; descriptive detail

Scientific text: Subject start to sentence = more direct; shorter sense; precise detail – ‘burrows’, ‘cracks’; prepositional phrase specifies ‘in the river bed’
Poetic text: long sentences; use of metaphor and simile; expanded noun phrases; emotive engagement with subject ‘worn out’. More indirect communication – inference needed.

Scientific text: shorter sentence; subject start; expanded noun phrase provides scientific detail; use of scientific vocabulary. More direct communication – no inference.
Sentence variety in Think of an Eel

Into the river he swims like a mad thing. He wriggles up rapids, climbs rocks around waterfalls. River banks guide him. Nothing will stop him.

After eighty days’ swimming, not eating, not sleeping, eel’s long, winding body is worn out and wasted. He spills the new life carried deep in his belly, then sinks through the sea like a used silver wrapper.

Student Talk Task: discuss sentence variety in this extract

Think about:

- Sentence length or shortness
- Syntax
- Literary devices
After eighty days’ swimming, not eating, not sleeping, eel’s long, winding body is worn out and wasted. He spills the new life carried deep in his belly, then sinks through the sea like a used silver wrapper.

Student Writing Task: Rewrite this paragraph as a science text.

After eighty days’ swimming, without food or sleep, the eel’s long body is exhausted. The male fertilizes the female’s eggs, and then dies.

Student Talk Task:
- What transformations are made to alter the lyrical description into a scientific description?
- Could any other changes be made?
A LINGUISTIC LENS ON POETRY
If in some smothering dreams you too could pace
Behind the wagon that we flung him in,
And watch the white eyes writhing in his face,
His hanging face, like a devil's sick of sin;
If you could hear, at every jolt, the blood
Come gargling from the froth-corrupted lungs,
Obscene as cancer, bitter as the cud
Of vile, incurable sores on innocent tongues,
My friend, you would not tell with such high zest
To children ardent for some desperate glory,
The old Lie: Dulce et Decorum est
Pro patria mori.

from Dulce et Decorum est: Wilfred Owen
If in some smothering dreams you too could pace
Behind the wagon that we flung him in,
And watch the white eyes writhing in his face,
His hanging face, like a devil's sick of sin;
If you could hear, at every jolt, the blood
Come gargling from the froth-corrupted lungs,
Obscene as cancer, bitter as the cud
Of vile, incurable sores on innocent tongues,
My friend, you would not tell with such high zest
To children ardent for some desperate glory,
The old Lie: Dulce et Decorum est
Pro patria mori.
If in some smothering dreams you too could pace
Behind the wagon that we flung him in,
And watch the white eyes writhing in his face,
His hanging face, like a devil's sick of sin;
If you could hear, at every jolt, the blood
Come gargling from the froth-corrupted lungs,
Obscene as cancer, bitter as the cud
Of vile, incurable sores on innocent tongues,
My friend, you would not tell with such high zest
To children ardent for some desperate glory,
The old Lie: Dulce et Decorum est
Pro patria mori.
If in some smothering dreams you too could pace
Behind the wagon that we flung him in,
And watch the white eyes writhing in his face,
His hanging face, like a devil's sick of sin;
If you could hear, at every jolt, the blood
Come gargling from the froth-corrupted lungs,
Obscene as cancer, bitter as the cud
Of vile, incurable sores on innocent tongues,
My friend, you would not tell with such high zest
To children ardent for some desperate glory,
The old Lie: Dulce et Decorum est
Pro patria mori.

use of modal verbs: why?
PLENARY
Using this approach

Three key pre-requisites:

- Strong grammar knowledge
- An ability to notice how texts are ‘working’
- The ability to plan purposefully, integrating an attention to grammar within teaching units.
Task:

- Consider the types of writing and the texts you will be using with your classes this term
- Consider the children you will be teaching and what they need to learn about their writing

- What grammar might be embedded into your teaching units to support this learning?
Understanding the Author’s Craft

- Writing is fundamentally about making choices and decisions.
- These choices can be explicit or implicit choices: as we become more expert at writing, more and more choices become implicit and internalised, but equally other choices become the focus of explicit attention.
- Novice writers need support in understanding the choices that are available to them in terms of content and ideas, text structures, sentence and phrase structures and vocabulary.
- Focused engagement with reading texts can be converted in more ‘writerly’ engagement with written texts.
- To help students understand the author’s craft requires explicit teaching.
- The goal is to open up a repertoire of infinite possibilities, not to impose formulaic ways of writing.
The Romantic view!

Every line, every phrase, may pass the ordeal of deliberation and deliberate choice.

Samuel Taylor Coleridge